OPPORTUNITIES ABROAD: SUMMER SCHOOL PROGRAM

PBL (Project Based Learning)

We are the sending organization of Indian students from educational institutes to foreign universities to work on various projects. PBL is comparatively new phenomenon in India. Basically, final year students have compulsion of preparing an exclusive project to gain good grades in their academics and the available period differs from four to six weeks. In this duration, they can go abroad and work on their projects in wellknown foreign universities with whom we are connected.

The context of the program is to help all the participants to gain the advanced knowledge in the form of latest methods of lecturing and research as well as enjoying the international atmosphere. As set by the traditional program itself, this program brings also regional and international professors and lecturers for a period of four to five weeks together and provides the opportunity for local and international students to learn and share their experiences.

The objective is to provide an opportunity to a student to work on projects in future technology under supervision of a university, abroad. Students are expected to complete one/two projects in the technology area of his/her interest in the environment of product development cycle. Global exposure for life skill development, focus building, long term carrier planning are other benefits.
